

PREMIUM PRANGE "GRAND PRIX"

GÜNTER PRANGE - A PHENOMENA WITHOUT STARLIKE AIRS!

Günter Prange is one of the absolute idols of German pigeon racing. During his career, he has won everything that was winnable from local to national levels. Moreover, Günter has won the German Golden Pigeon award six times, joining the line of stars with his equal six-times winner Jos Thoné (Belgium), and Kees Bosua (The Netherlands), who won four times.

Anyone who challenges this former boxer in any sport will soon notice that Günter still has a big hart for sports, which he has expressed through his pigeons since ending his other sports career.

He founded his strain with Maurice Delbar pigeons crossed with Cornelis and Gerard Koopman birds. A son of the 'Beatrixdoffer' (Beatrix Cock) crossed with a Koopman hen 'Daughter Sultana' with ring number NL94-2227959 was the foundation sire, a pigeon that went on to be the father of some top class pigeons, including the famous 'Ringlose Nr. 12'.

Although Günter approaches pigeon racing by applying thorough thought to every aspect, he always strives for simplicity. That is why he wanted to find a basic mix that he could use to feed his pigeons all year round, with just small amounts of supplements. He developed the mix in collaboration with BEYERS and it markets under the name BEYERS PREMIUM PRANGE "GRAND PRIX". This system mix has become one of the most commonly used among many top class pigeon fanciers.

FEEDING PROGRAM – RACING SYSTEM GÜNTER PRANGE

The basic ingredients of the PREMIUM PRANGE GRAND PRIX mix comprise small cribbs maize, red dari and cardy (safflower). A striking factor of this mix is its high proportion of hemp seed, at no less than 9%. Günter is a big fan of hemp seed, and he even adds extra during the breeding and racing season because it is both rich in fat and has high protein content.

In periods when the pigeons need to exert less effort, Günter uses paddy rice to make the mix lighter, while adding additional corn to it when approaching basketing during the racing season.
